

Sarah Hagen has been with TNC in varying capacities since starting as an intern with the Wisconsin chapter in 2005. Sarah's undergraduate studies at the University of Wisconsin earned her a bachelor's degree in Wildlife Ecology, as well as a certificate in Environmental Studies from the Gaylord Nelson Institute for Environmental Studies. Her graduate certificate in Geographic Information Systems was awarded from the University of Wisconsin.

Sarah worked for the stewardship and land protection departments of the Wisconsin Chapter of TNC until September of 2007 when she took a position as the GIS Analyst for the Central Region of TNC. Sarah divides her time between the Illinois Chapter science team and the LANDFIRE team. Her primary focus with LANDFIRE is analyzing National Datasets within various geographies across the Continental United States. Sarah lives in Minneapolis.
